Board Determined to Withhold Federal Aid Till Changes Are Made by State.

FERGUSON TURNED DOWN

Auditor Told Responsibility Rests With Davey, Bevens, Bureau's New Chief.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The Social Security board is determined to withhold federal aid for Ohio's old age pensioners until administrative changes which it recommended are put into effect in the state's division for aid to the aged.

Joseph T. Ferguson, Ohio state auditor, emerged yesterday from a conference with board officials and said the situation was unchanged.

Up to Davey, Bevens

"The responsibility now rests with Wray Bevens (new director of the Ohio division) and Gov. Martin L. Davey whether Ohio pensioners get their checks this month," said Ferguson.

He had made a futile plea for release of federal funds, cut off after the board charged the pension division with failure to comply with certain security act requirements.

Governor Davey announced meanwhile at Columbus that three attorneys would comprise his counsel in opposing a mandamus action filed in the state supreme court seeking to compel him to make the recommended changes in the pension system.

Names 3 Lawyers.

The attorneys named by Davey are John M. Caren, formerly his executive secretary; Carlson S. Dargusch, former vice chairman of the state tax commission, and Charles S. Druggan, legal aid to the Davey administration.

Edgar S. Byers of Cleveland brought the mandamus action. Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy refused to defend the governor and two other officials—Welfare Director Margaret Allman and Bevans—because, he said, Davey refused to co-operate with the Social Security board.

County Bar Hears Of Plan To Speed Up Court Hearings

The "pre-trial" plan of hearing cases, which may be used in Richland county common pleas court, was described to members of the county bar association by Judge C. H. Huston at a meeting yesterday afternoon at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

Under the plan, attorneys for the prosecution and defense meet with the judge preceding the trial to discuss details of the case, and the points on which they agree are not heard at the trial, Judge Huston said.

The plan eliminates a number of witnesses, saves money and speeds up the trial, the judge pointed out. Details of the prehearing are recorded by the court stenographer and presented in brief at the trial.

Attys. William M. Weldon, George Biddle and Joseph Bayer were named as a county bar committee to study the merits of the plan and present their findings to the association.

The system is now being successfully used in Michigan, New York and California, Judge Huston said.

Two new Mansfield attorneys, Earl Gaar and John Dinsmore, were introduced at the meeting. Gaar, who came here from Eaton, is affiliated with Atty. Francis R. O'Brien, and Dinsmore is counsel for the Lumbermens Mutual Insurance company.

Ohio-Trojan Battle Tops Grid Menu

Bucks Favored In Day's Big Game; 4 Big Ten Tussles on Card.

Football bedlam descended upon the major football centers again today as the powers of the college gridiron continued their battles for national honors.

Headlining the program was Ohio State's engagement with Southern California which was expected to attract a capacity crowd of more than 70,000.

Victorious over Indiana in their opener, the Bucks were favored to avenge the one-point defeat administered by the Trojans last season, but a close game was in prospect.

The Big Ten schedule sends Minnesota against Purdue, Michigan against Chicago, Iowa against Wisconsin and Illinois against Indiana. Northwestern takes on Drake.

Army Faces Columbia.

The standout game in the east involves Army and Columbia. Columbia was slightly favored, but those who have seen Army in action figure that the Cadets' greater reserve strength should more than offset the potentialities of Sid Luckman, the mainspring of Columbia's "one-man team."

Outside of Santa Clara, which faces Texas Aggies in an outstanding intersectional tussle, the other early season standouts did not appear in danger today.

Pitt's Panthers, already victorious over West Virginia and Temple, meet Duquesne in their home town brawl. Alabama's mighty Crimson Tide should have easy going against North Carolina State. Notre Dame's "mystery" team is expected to do a "Sherman" through Georgia Tech. Dartmouth should win over Princeton.

In the Ohio conference, the Denison-Wooster tilt heads the bill, with Miami and Marshall colluding in the headline Buckeye contest.

The high school spotlight in this vicinity is held by Mansfield and Columbus East, which clashed at Stadium field at 2:30, and Shelby and Ashland in Ashland. Shelby is undefeated.

MEET ON TIE-UP

UAW Leaders Confer As 16,000 Workers Remain Idle.

DETROIT — (U.P.) — The United Automobile Workers union held a hurried conference today on its 32-hour week plan, which caused a walkout from the Chrysler corporation's Plymouth plant that withdrew 16,000 men from work yesterday.

Nine international officers of the union came here by airplane from Washington, where the executive board formally approved the 32-hour week last Wednesday, to meet with local UAW leaders who had followed up the board's proposal with quick and direct action.

International officers made no comment immediately on whether their headquarters had approved the walkout of 6,000 Plymouth workers, whose sole demand was a 32-hour week and who denied that they were on strike but said they were quitting because they had worked 32 hours this week.

It was reported that the men planned to return to work Monday regardless of today's conference.

Hartnett Shuffles Cubs, Hopes for Winning Hand

Gabby Shifts Outfield, Picks Youngster Bryant for Pitching Assignment In 'Last Stand' Maneuver.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Like a nervous card player gambling it all on the flip of one card, Manager Gabby Hartnett of the Chicago Cubs shuffled his line-up today hoping to draw a winning hand against the New York Yankees in the third game of the world series.

He knows that the deck is stacked dead against his winning this series, for the Yankees are back in their own yard today where they know every board in the fences, every blade in the grassy outfield and every shadow that crawls when day is done. They are back in their own yard riding the crest of two straight world series victories on the alien soil of Wrigley Field.

Shifts Outfield.

So the time has come for Gabby to take steps and this is what he plans to do: Frank Demaree, the outfielder who is hitting a puny .143, goes to the bench and Cavarretta, Reynolds and Marty will range the outfield for Chicago.

Then he will call on a raw youngster, who never had the roar of a world series crowd beat against his ears, to carry the pitching burden—Clay Bryant, born down below the Mason-Dixon line, and a young man who throws a fast curve which breaks like the vase your mother-in-law knocked off the table. This may turn out to be a day of sweet revenge for young Mr. Bryant because when he

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The supreme court completed today its examination of approximately 300 cases filed during the summer. It will announce on Monday which ones will be revived.

Leading controversities before the justices either today or during conferences earlier in the week involved:

1. Thomas J. Mooney's effort to obtain release from San Quentin penitentiary. He is serving a life sentence for complicity in the 1916 preparedness day parade bombing in San Francisco.

2. The Ford Motor company's contention that the national labor relations board should not be permitted to withdraw from a circuit court of appeals litigation involving an order directing the automobile concern to reinstate employes.

3. Anna Marie Hahn's attempt to escape the electric chair after conviction at Cincinnati of the poison slaying of Jacob Wagner.

Sawyer Admits Bricker Has Him Beat On Appearance.

CIRCLEVILLE —(AP)— Charles Sawyer admitted today that John W. Bricker had him bested in one respect.

Bricker is the Republican nominee.

TELL OF THREAT AGAINST UNION

Workers Testify They Were Warned CIO Majority Would Close Plant.

Workers at the Ideal Electric and Manufacturing company, who were called to the witness stand yesterday in a National Labor Relations board hearing of charges against the firm, testified that foremen had told them that the factory would close because of crippled finances if the CIO unions obtained a membership of 75 per cent of the employes of the plant.

Most of the seven union employes at the factory who were called before the board said the alleged threat was based on the belief that banks would not back the firm if CIO affiliated unions obtained a majority.

The workers also testified that they had been urged to join the plant's cooperative union in order to protect their interests as workers.

Called to the stand to testify for the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers union were Frank Hemperly, John Clapsaddle, Walter Marsh, Joseph Young, John Staats, Harrison Yeager and Alfred Mulberg.

With several more witnesses to be called by the union, the hearing was recessed until Monday morning. It was expected to continue for several days next week.

Charges of unfair practices, involving alleged attempts to discourage union organization activities among employes, were filed with the NLRB by the Machine Workers union, an affiliate of the CIO.

Moore said that preliminary investigation had been completed and that "it appears many securities outside the field of cemetery lots have been sold by organizations affiliated with those engaging in cemetery lot dealings and in these dealings the securities act is being evaded."

1,245 AT WORK ON FEDERAL AID PROJECTS

Total Only 55 Under Record Set Three Years Ago; State Figure Up.

DIRECT RELIEF DROPS

State Director Points to 43 Per Cent Reduction as WPA Sets New Mark.

Employment on WPA projects in Richland county approached a new high today, with 1,245 persons working on federal projects as compared with the all-time high of approximately 1,300 about three years ago.

At the same time, the state WPA office announced that a new mark had been set in the employment on work relief projects in Ohio.

Slight Upturn Seen.

There was a resulting decrease of 43 per cent in the number of persons receiving direct relief, State Relief Director William C. Dixon pointed out. He attributed the drop to extended WPA activities and a slight upturn in business conditions.

With 624 men employed on county road and bridge projects, the county's share of the employment set a new record. In Mansfield and Shelby, however, the number of workers is less than at the beginning of WPA, officials said.

Contributing to the employment was the $1,000,000 county-wide program, designed to provide work for more than 900 persons.

Provides Jobs for Boys.

In line with the increasing WPA activities, S. Burns Weston, state director of the National Youth administration, announced today that a roadside park improvement project at Olivesburg, northeast of Mansfield, had been approved by the federal government and would provide employment for 40 needy boys for two months.

County Engineer Howard C. Sword said about 140 men from WPA jobs in Washington township would be shifted to a state-sponsored road project west of Mansfield in about 10 days.

Back To 'Old Home'

While many followers of Louis Bromfield, above, believed today that his plan to return to America and his native Mansfield is the result of the constant under-current of war threats in Europe, Mansfielders ascribed his return to a strong feeling the novelist has for his boyhood home. Mrs. Bromfield and their children have already left their home near Senlis, France, where they have resided for several years and are expected here within a few weeks. Bromfield plans to leave France late this month to establish a temporary residence here.

BULKLEY, TAFT DEBATE TONIGHT

Senatorial Candidates Boost, Tear Into New Deal at 1st Of Six Meetings.

(By Associated Press)

MARIETTA — The important role the New Deal is playing in Ohio's November election was thrust into the foreground of the campaign today as senatorial candidates came here to stage the first of six scheduled debates.

Robt. A. Taft of Cincinnati, the Republican nominee and challenger, will face Democratic Sen. Robert J. Bulkley of Cleveland, in the field house of Marietta college tonight, with Taft taking the affirmative of the question that "Planned economy is a failure and offers no solution for unemployment and depression." The debate will not be broadcast.

Taft, a son of the late president, has severely criticised the New Deal in campaign speeches. Bulkley is a staunch supporter of President Roosevelt and his policies.

The gubernatorial candidates pressed on, meanwhile, in their intensive drive for support in the rural districts.

After a tour of southern counties, Charles Sawyer, the Democratic nominee, stopped in Portsmouth last night and declared in a statewide radio address that his Republican opponent, John W. Bricker, proposed to "tie the hands of the civil service commission with party bonds and throw wide the civil service door to spoilsmanship."

Bricker, stumping through northwest Ohio, asserted in a

DUCE CARRIES OUT 1ST STEP OF NEW 'DEAL'

Withdraws 10,000 Troops From Fascist Forces to Obtain Conquest Recognition.

FRANCO ALSO AGREES

Loyalists Withdraw American Volunteers As Italian, British Plan Operates.

(By International News Service)

LONDON — Peace loomed for Spain today after the most sanguinary of modern civil wars as Italy agreed to the major initial step in a broad plan to settle Italo-British difficulties in the Mediterranean.

Not only Italy, but the Spanish insurgent regime of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, has agreed to the withdrawal of ten thousand foreign troops now fighting against the government, according to messages from Burgos.

Government Agrees.

Release of all alien forces from the government side was promised at Geneva last week by Julio Alvarez Del Vayo, the Barcelona foreign minister. The League of Nations, at his request, appointed a commission to carry out the disbandment.

The Lincoln-Washington brigade, composed of American volunteers on the government side, has already been recalled from the front and is being demobilized.

Immediate recall of the ten thousand Italian troops is step No. 1 in a British plan which will lead to London's recognition of the Italian domain in Ethiopia.

Application of the long-delayed Italo-British agreement, which depends on a settlement in Spain, will be the next step.

After the British recognition of the Ethiopian conquest, French cognizance is expected to follow through appointment of a French envoy to Rome—an arrangement which has been held in abeyance for two years.

Withdraws War Material.

Withdrawal of a substantial amount of Italian war material from the Spanish insurgents is also looked for in the British plan, in addition to men.

Premier Mussolini, according to the understanding in British circles, had already agreed to the re-

LABOR TO ACT ON PEACE PLEA SOON

Council Might Decide Today on Roosevelt's Appeal.

HOUSTON, Tex — (AP) — The American Federation of Labor's executive council may determine today whether to heed President Roosevelt's plea for labor peace or stand pat on its policy of waiting for John L. Lewis' CIO to make the next unity move in labor's civil war.

AFL President William Green summoned the council into a special meeting after Daniel J. Tobin, a council member and president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, pleaded with union delegates at the 58th annual convention yesterday to order their leaders "to try to bring about a settlement."

Westinghouse 'College' Awards 'Degrees' To Allen At Farewell

"The graduating class of the Westinghouse college of Arts and Science will come forward!"

Mr. A. E. Allen, "the president of the school announced as he stood before the "student body" in his cap and gown.

A tall man with hair somewhat grayed from the years at the head of his "class" stepped to the platform.

Three "classmates" draped a gold gown about his shoulders and placed a gold cap on his head—and then the "degrees" were conferred upon him.

There were diplomas for Arts, Science, Manufacturing, Engineering, Public Speaking and many more, all in the form of miniatures, symbolic of the different phases of business in which he had gained proficiency.

Each bore an engraved plate and was presented by the respective "class" presidents.

Then 150 "students" rose to their feet and drank a toast to the "graduate" and in the traditional custom glasses were shattered on the floor as the "college" band concluded the commencement exercises with strains of "Auld Lang Syne."

This was the unique manner in which associates of A. E. Allen, former vice president of the Mansfield plant of Westinghouse, paid tribute to their former "boss" at a farewell banquet in the ballroom of the Mansfield-Leland hotel last night.

In addition to momentos given by various department heads, a rawhide traveling bag was presented to Allen by the group.

Allen, who was vice president of the Mansfield plant for past four years, resigned four weeks ago.

Examiner Holds Law Gives J. P. Courts Loophole For 'Racket'

COLUMBUS The possibility of a rural traffic light becoming the vehicle for a personal revenue "racket" by an alert justice of the peace and his constable was pointed out today by State Examiner J. R. Attershot in a report to the state inspection bureau on a Medina county justice's office.

The report showed that Justice Mark M. Lutz of Brunswick township, and his constable, Walter Fetchler, had collected more than 90 per cent of their fees in the prosecution of persons who "crashed" the red light in the village of Brunswick, whereas only a little more than 30 per cent of the assessed fines were collected.

In a period of less than 13 months to Aug. 22 the justices of the peace assessed fines of $8,115, chiefly against motorists, but collected only $2,586 He remitted $4,676 in assessed fines. At the same time he levied costs totaling $5,037 and collected $4,553. The costs are retained by the justice.

Constable Petchler during the same period had costs levied in his behalf totaling $3,003, of which $2,799 was collected. A constable keeps such costs.

"It appears from observation," the examiner commented, "that this is a situation wherein the justice of the peace and the constable are more interested in collecting their fees rather than being so vitally interested in the safety and welfare of the traveling public.

NATIVE OF DENMARK FEDERATION SPEAKER

Mrs. Herbert White, Columbus, Tells of Customs, Cuisine of Native Land at Tea Given at Women's Club.

FOR the second affair sponsored by the Mansfield Federation of Women at the Women's Club this year more than 100 members and guests crowded the living room and dining room to hear Mrs. Herbert White, Columbus, speak on Denmark. The speaker, a native of Denmark, gave a delightfully informal account of her country.

Mrs. White appeared in native costume consisting of the peasant type bodice, long full skirt, white blouse and quaint black embroidered head dress. She made the guests' mouths water with description of unusual foods.

Speaking of the customs of her native land she said, "Coffee drinking is almost a vice." The natives have coffee upon awakening, coffee for three regular meals during the day, coffee in the afternoon and again before retiring.

"Their beds are awfully uncomfortable," she explained as she described the interiors of the houses. Feather beds are still used, and they won't tuck in, and they slip from the beds, the speaker told in a voice with a slight accent.

She dwelt considerably on the excellent cuisine and fine handwork of the Danish women. Among her exhibits were pieces of fine lace and embroidery.

Speaking of factors of which Denmark is especially proud, Mrs. White told her audience that they have the co-operative system, there is little of so-called crime news in the daily papers, there is no such thing as slums, and that Denmark has the highest rate of literacy of any country in the world.

Among the unusual facts she told was that Denmark celebrates the Fourth of July with the United States as a national holiday in loving memory of all the Danes who now make their homes here.

In telling of the customs of her native land, Mrs. White spoke of funeral and marriage observances, free hospitalization, the Lutheran religion, the treatment of peddlars, and the difficulties of homemaking.

After the short business meeting and lecture, Mrs. E. J. Gilbert, president of the federation, poured tea. The table was decorated with a rectangular centerpiece of pompons and marigolds.

Assisting the president with arrangements were Mrs. Avery Hand, Mrs. John Graham, Mrs. Charles Shafer and Miss Edith Martien.

Mrs. Charles Keating and Mrs. Reynolds were the associate hostesses. Luncheon was served at a table which was attractively decorated with chrysanthemums. Mrs. Ephriam Brown and Mrs. Charles Dickey poured.

Plans to have a picnic Oct. 14 at Mohican State park were made by the members. Mrs. Paul Sturges and Mrs. Carville Gorman will serve as hostesses.

"The Authority on Authorities"

A TEST OF NERVE

FEW NO TRUMP declarers would even think about a plan of play which called upon them to present the defenders with four successive early tricks as the best means of developing the next nine. With skilled cardsmen such maneuvers come under the heading of foresight, but with those less experienced the mere consideration of them involves a test of nerve.

This deal arose in a rubber game and South decided on an opening bid of 1-Club. North responded with 2-Clubs and South jumped to 3-No Trump. South should have bid Diamonds or No Trump, but his selection of a club was lucky, for North remarked later that unles he was forced he would have allowed either of those bids to stand, although he felt called upon to raise clubs.

The heart Q was West's opening lead and South was obliged to win with the K. He tried out two rounds of diamonds but decided then to discontinue that suit for fear it might not break. The club or spade finesse looked dangerous in view of the set up heart suit against him. If West held five hearts originally, four tricks in that suit, plus any other losers, would mean the loss of the contract, so he led a heart. West crashed all of his hearts and, although he realized he was sqeezing East, he figured that we would not make them later. A spade was his return. Declarer played to the club A, finessed the J and then cashed two good diamonds and the club K.

Monday's Problem.

How should West play to make 4-Hearts, the club 4 being North's original lead?

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I WAS GLAD to hear an unmistakable note of jealousy in Mary's spiteful comment that Olina would tell Phillip Veritzen of Noel's trip with me to see his young wife.

Before she had finished sputtering, I began the assurance of secrecy for the trip which I had given Noel, outlining the plan for camouflaging our absence from the hotel, and emphasizing the importance of the letter I meant to write to Lillian, asking her to curb Olina in speech and action.

"It may work," Mary said with despondent pessimism. "Of course, Aunt Lillian is a diplomatic ace, but, while Olina's a darling, there's a sufficient streak of hellcat in her to make it fifty-fifty that she won't keep her mouth shut."

"You don't know Aunt Lillian," I said confidently. "She'll make it one hundred to nothing—you can bank on that."

"I'm afraid my check might bounce," she retorted with a reluctant grin which told me that my assurance of Olina's silence had subtly heartened her.

"You must be terribly tired," she said hospitably. "I'll ring room service and have some hot milk sent up. Or would you prefer coffee?"

"No, indeed," I answered. "But I should be glad to join you in glasses of hot milk." I looked at her meaningly, and her grin widened.

"Ah! the old maestro in person," she gibed. "You intend to see that Miss Whitcomb's sedative goes down."

"That is my unalterable determination," I told her. Wrinkling her nose at me, she went to the telephone and ordered hot milk.

Chance to Talk.

"It will be five minutes, at least, before it comes," she said, "so we'll have a chance to talk over things. First, what's the matter with Hank? He doesn't look a bit sick, just a sort of queer, strained look about his eyes."

I grasped frantically at the lead she unconsciously had given me She had enough to worry her now. I meant to give her no hint of our real reason for bringing Hank to a psychiatrist for a consultation.

"Dicky's a bit worried about his eyes," I said. "And I grant you that his physical condition does not need attention. But Dicky has observed that he is intensely nervous—too many cigarets, he thinks—so he wishes to see a nerve man and an oculist before he goes back to school."

"Hank's a cigarette fiend," she said didactically. "He hasn't the sense of a gander. That's probably all that's the matter with him. But it will cost Uncle Dicky a tidy little sum to find out something that any kid could tell him. Just wait till I see Hank in the morning. I'll put a flea in his ear."

Madge Protests.

"Oh! no! Mary!" I protested in sudden panic. "You musn't!" And then, at her quick, amazed glance, which, I imagined, held more than a soupcon of suspicion, I hurried on with lame improvisation which, miraculously, I managed to make sound plausible.

"Listen to me, Darling!" I said. "Remember—you won't see your brothers again for several months. You are the person they love best on earth. Don't spoil their memory of you by any criticism. Your Uncle Dicky will say everything that is needed. He already has begun his 'course of sprouts' So please keep quiet."

"Okay!" she said with quick acquiescence. Then, to my amazement, her voice took on a subtly chillier note.

"Let's pass on to the next question of importance. How long does Noel expect to stay in New York?"

COUPLE WED 60 YEARS TODAY AT CRESTLINE

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Trick In Quiet Observance Of Wedding Anniversary.

CRESTLINE — Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Frick, North Seltzer street, are today quietly celebrating their 60th wedding anniversary at their home.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Sprow and Jacob Frick was solemnized by Rev. J. W. Winter, pastor of Calvary Reformed church, the ceremony taking place at the parsonage on October 8, 1878. The bride was a daughter of Jacob and Catherine Sprow of near Crestline. She has reached the age of 80 years and Mr. Frick is now 83. Both are in fairly good health.

Mr. and Mrs. Frick have made their home at their present residence on North Seltzer street the past 25 years, moving there from the farm north of the city, where they began housekeeping.

While no special observance had been planned to mark the unusual anniversary, their many relatives and friends extended congratulations and good wishes in various expressive ways.

SURPRISED ON BIRTHDAY

CRESTLINE — Eight couples were entertained by Mrs. Ray Kilian Thursday evening at the home of her father, George Strauch, on West Main street, as a surprise to her husband in celebration of his birthday anniversary. Euchre was the evening's diversion, Mrs. Edward Boyer and Frank B. Strauch winning the prizes. Mrs. Killian served lunch.

The group then surprised the hostess and the honoree by presenting them a gift for their twelfth wedding anniversary which was an event of the day. Miss Erle Strauch and Ray Kilian were married at the parsonage of Calvary Reformed church October 6, 1926, by Rev. William Huber. Miss Strauch was a former teacher in the Crestline schools. Since their marriage they have resided in Swanders where Mr. Kilian operates a general store.

Mr. and Mrs. Kilian and their only son Billy are visiting her father and other relatives here this week.

Besides the Kilian family the only other out-of-town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Boyer of Galion.

EXTENDED CALL

LUCAS—Rev. C. B. A. Stacy, of Dayton, has been extended a call to become pastor of the Mt. Zion and Mifflin Lutheran churches, it was learned this week following a meeting Monday night of the joint councils of the two congregations.

At special congregational meetings held Sunday morning members of both congregations voted in favor of extending the call.

Rev. Stacy is a graduate of Wittenberg college and Hamma Divinity school. He was ordained by the Lutheran Synod of Ohio in 1926, and has served pastorates at Middletown and Dayton.

No indication has been received from Rev. Stacy as to whether or not he will accept the call. He appeared before both congregations as a guest preacher several weeks ago.

A Farmer's Diary

Jack-In-the-Pulpit.

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I ALWAYS watch with great interest the development of our friend, Jack-in-the-Pulpit. In early spring, before the forest floor is shaded by the larger trees, Jack makes his appearance as a strong pointed shoot. In places where the shade is not severe, and sunshine enters, various tints of color are in his dress; but in the damper, darker recesses, the entire flower is all a pale green leaf.

The plant is not the saintly preacher that at first he appears to be, for I have opened the deep cup of this bloom and found imprisoned at the bottom, gnats and small flies. They crept down into the inclosure to be sheltered from the cold spring winds. The going down was simple, but the cruel Jack had left no easy way for the creatures to escape. Yet they had pollinated the stiff, protruding spike, and made it fertile for growing seed.

In late August, I found, this year, a bright scarlet head of many seeds, upon a stem six inches high. This showy fruit, beneath its vivid skin, contains a moist, insipid, fleshy pulp, which is not sharp and caustic to the tongue, like the bulb that grows beneath it.

Those tempting seeds startle the eye with their fiery brilliance, and coax the birds to taste them. By this means, the hidden, hard-shelled seed is borne far from the parent plant, into some distant woods.

The Indians used to boil the savage-tasting root, until it contained only a starchy, acrid pulp. From this the bulb was christened "Indian Turnip."

Jack-in-the-Pulpit leads a pleasant robust life, that brightens well the autumn forests.

MARJORIE CASEY MARRIED TO JOHN BOYD AT GALION TODAY

GALION—An informal wedding was solemnized at 10:30 o'clock this morning in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd A. Casey, West Church street, when their daughter, Marjorie Jane, was married to John Charles Boyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Boyd of the South State road.

Palms and ferns formed an improvised altar which was decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums, and candelabra holding yellow and white candles. The single ring service was read by the Rev. W. N. Robertson, pastor of First Methodist church. The ceremony was witnessed by 33 relatives and friends. Mr. Boyd gave his bride a beautiful ring set with ten small diamonds.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a smart street length dress of Porto plum shade, and her accessories were of the same shade. A corsage of Catteleyea orchids and lilies-of the-valley completed her outfit.

Her attendant was Mrs. James Casey, a close friend, who wore Teal blue with black accessories and a corsage of yellow orchids and lilies-of-the-valley.

Ralph E. Boyd was best man for his nephew.

Preceding the ceremony, the guests were seated by Harry Barrick and James Casey, a cousin of the bride. Candles were lighted by two of the bride's sorority sisters, Mrs. Barrick, and Mrs. Harold Seckel of Bucyrus. Lohengrin's wedding march was played by LaDonna Heiby, another sorority sister.

HEIRS' BATTLE FOR OIL RICHES OF INDIAN ENDS

Decision in Estate Case Due as Judge Concludes Four Years of Litigation.

(By United Press)

DURANT, Okla.—Lengthy litigation involving the estate of Jackson Barnett, the world's richest Indian, who died on May 29, 1934, has entered its final phase.

After hearing testimony for four years, Circuit Judge Robert L. Williams has gone into seclusion here to write his decision, which may not be read before winter. With testimony heard and arguments ended, there will be no further developments in the Barnett case until the judge announces his decision.

More than 700 persons claim a share in the estate. More than 100 attorneys figured in the estate proceedings. More than 3,000 pages of testimony were taken in deposition hearings.

Court litigation over the estate of the full-blooded Creek Indian who took a fortune in oil from the fields around Cushing made the name Jackson Barnett known over the world.

Fortune Greatly Reduced.

Once Barnett's fortune was estimated at $25,000,000. But it dwindled and now is estimated to be worth from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000.

Purported heirs of his millions came from every section of the country. Three years ago an attorney from a rural community in Harlan county, Ky., walked into the federal court office at Muskogee and announced that he was ready to pack the Barnett estate millions into his traveling bag and take it back to the "rightful claimant."

Kentucky claimants entered the case early. There were the "Middlesboro Barnetts," the "Barbourville kinsfolk," and the "Yellow Creek family."

Hundreds of others, including Mrs. Anna Laura Lowe Barnett, his white wife, entered their claims for all or part of the estate.

One claimant was Bertha Barnett of Oklahoma City, who said she was married to the Indian at a tribal ceremony. Alleged relatives include those who claim to be Barnett's nephews, nieces, or claim to have been related to him through marriage. Several groups banded together, claimed that Barnett had no legal heirs, that the estate should revert to them.

Judge Williams heard the claims and the arguments of hundreds of claimants for four years. And when he closed the case, he cut short attorneys who insisted that they had much more to say.

"I can't keep all of this in my head," Judge Williams told them. "I must ask you to write it for me, and I will study your cases at length."

Judge Williams will reach the age of 70 years on Dec. 20. Entitled to serve for life, he announced when he accepted membership on the circuit court of appeals that he would retire when he reached 70. After his retirement, however, he is subject to assignment.

Whether Judge Williams' decision will be known before his own retirement from active service on the bench was one of many questions which remain to be answered.

Britton's Band Here Today

Milton Britton and his famous band moved into the Madison theater today for a one-day engagement, coming from Pittsburgh where they appeared yesterday. The Britton band is noted, not only for its top-bracket swing music and entertainment features, but for its rowdy habit of breaking up all of the furniture and musical instruments. After leaving Mansfield tonight the band moves into the Brooklyn Paramount theater for three days and later in the month goes to Hollywood to start work on "Honolulu," the Eleanor Powell film. Shown above are Tommy Rafferty, Walter Powell and Britton

Rare Photos of Germs Taken By London Doctor

BOSTON—(INS)—Photographs of the streptococcus germ obtained from a living person, believed the only ones of their kind in existence, were brought here by Dr. Herbert Rogers, resident pathologist at the North Middlesex hospital in London.

Long engaged in the study of malignant endocarditis, Dr. Rogers had the experience of examining under a microscope. streptococcus germs present in the blood smear taken from a 30-year-old patient at the hospital.

Several exceptionally good photographs of the germ were shown to pathologists at Harvard university during Dr. Rogers' visit. Discovering and photographing the germ were called "lucky" by the English physician, who added that it is not likely to happen again in his lifetime.

ALBINO FAWNS

Deformed Animals Arouse Talk Among Sportsmen.

TILLAMOOK, Ore.—(INS)—The discovery of two albino fawns who had died as a result of deformed legs caused considerable discussion among wild life enthusiasts in this section today. The fawns were found at widely separated points, but the forelegs on one were twisted so badly it had worn the skin away from its ankles by walking on the joints, and the other suffered a similar condition of its rear legs. Rickets was suggested by several sources as a possible cause of the deformities.

The title role of the Wizard, for which dozens of character actors were considered and tested, was finally given to Frank Morgan, who should be grand in the role. The musical fantasy gets under way soon with Judy Garland, Buddy Ebsen, Ray Bolger, Bert Lahr, Billie Burke, Gale Sondergaard and Charlie Grapewin.

Gabby Hartnett to Gamble on Nervous Bryant Today

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK—(AP)—The shell-shocked Chicago Cubs, beaten in the first two games in their home park, limped into huge Yankee stadium today to renew the unequal struggle against Joe McCarthy's wonder team in the third battle of the world series.

On the way out to the Bronx abbatoir they passed through a town not visibly excited about the annual blue-ribbon classic. The local fan, surfeited with world series contests for the past decade, is fast becoming immune to the blaring of the bands, and the prospect was that the stadium's 70,000 capacity would not be strained.

If the Cubs had been able to win one of those games in their own windy field there might have been an awakening of interest here. But the average New York baseball nut is convinced now that the Yanks will make it four straight, winding up with their third consecutive world championship on Sunday night.

Gabby Hartnett, the locals point out, threw his two best bets, Bill Lee and Dizzy Dean, at the slugging American leaguers in Chicago, and Bill and Dizzy got it in the neck. Today Gabby had to gamble on Clay Bryant, a nervous young newcomer to the big series, while his rival, McCarthy, could blast loose with Monte Pearson, a series veteran and a magnificent pitcher.

The Cubs were badly shaken by those home runs that Frank Crosetti and Joe DiMaggio hit to beat the courageous Dizzy in the second game, but they still were talking a lot of fight and contending in loud tones that the Yankees had been lucky stiffs. They felt that yesterday's rest would do them some good, and they were confident that if Bryant could win today they would come back behind Lee to square the count tomorrow.

Impressed by the way Joe Marty slugged the ball in the second game, Hartnett announced he would keep him in center field for today's game at least.

Despite the Crosetti-DiMaggio outburst Thursday, the Chicagos went into today's contest with a slightly better series batting average than their vaunted rivals—.303 to .279. All except two of their 20 blows, however, had been singles. They were hitting mashie shots while the Yanks were using a driver.

The outstanding feature of the series to date, though, has been the Yankee fielding, particularly by Crosetti and Flash Gordon. Between them, they handled 31 chances in the first two games and put together four double plays to spike Chicago rallies.

The Chicago fielding, on the other hand, has been a big disappointment. Bill Herman's error in the first game enabled the Yankees to beat Lee, 3 to 1, and the tumbling act put on by Bill Jurges and Stanley Hack provided the Yanks with two more runs in the second game.

Today, though, was another day, and there was a chance that Bryant's speed ball would baffle the champs and keep the series alive. Bryant has a world of smoke and misses being a great pitcher only because of fits of nervousness. There wasn't much doubt that Pearson would pitch a low-hit game if he felt ready to start. He has been out for some time with sinus trouble.

We'll Take 'Em Like This...See?

Bellville Adds Fourth Win

Butler Routs Danville, 52-0

DANVILLE—Coach Robert Burgett's Butler high grid team went on a scoring spree here yesterday as it swamped Danville high, 52 to 0.

The Bulldogs ran through the Blue Devils with ease, pushing over touchdowns in ever quarter. Butler tallied one in the opening period, two in the second, two more in the third and climaxed the scoring with three in the last frame.

Ward paced the Bulldogs with three markers, while Glenn Miller, and Boals each tallied two. Boals turned in the long run of the day, racing 54 yards in the third quarter.

Butler, which registered 25 first downs while completely stopping Danville, had two touchdowns called back because of penalties.

Coach Burgett used 26 players during the rout, with the second string playing most of the second half.

Crestline High Regains Stride

CRESTLINE — Coach Merle Hutson's Crestline high gridders regained their winning stride after two straight defeats here yesterday when they triumphed over Upper Sandusky, 19 to 6.

A feature of the game was Gannis's 60-yard touchdown run in the first half. Frye and Grim tallied the other Crestline points on power plays.

Ulrich scored the lone Upper Sandusky touchdown on a pass, which was good for about 40 yards.

New London Ends String of Losses

NEW LONDON—Led by Johnny Kott and Bob Thomas, making his first appearance since he suffered a brain concussion several weeks ago, New London ended its three-game losing streak with an 18 to 6 victory over Amherst in an opening Northern Ohio league tussle here yesterday.

Thomas romped 53 yards for the first score. Kott plunged for the second and carried over the lateral.

Opens Mid-State League Sked With 12-6 Triumph Over Loudonville.

BELLVILLE high's scrappy little grid machine hurdled another huge obstacle here yesterday in its march towards an undefeated season.

The Bluejays struck twice in the opening period to defeat Loudonville, 12 to 6, in the initial Mid State league contest for both clubs. It was Bellville's fourth straight triumph.

Stops Birds Near Goal.

Although outweighed, Bellville turned back all but one of the Red Bird's desperate touchdown marches. Loudonville pushed up and down the gridiron, but when it penetrated inside the Bellville 10, its attack was stopped cold.

Coach Royd Hodges' athletes started things rolling on the third play of the opening quarter. Hamilton supplying the touchdown on a nifty 45-yard run. Palm's pass for the point was incomplete.

Almost before Loudonville recovered from the shock, Beryl Balliett recovered a Red Bird fumble on Bellville's 40. On the first play Sheriff, on a double reverse, skirted his own right end and raced over for what proved to be the deciding touchdown. The kick for the point was blocked. These were the only times Bellville threatened.

Loudonville tallied its lone marker in the second chapter when John Allerding slashed through tackle from the 14 Seigfried's plunge for the point was stopped.

The Red Birds threatened serious on two other occasions. They drove to the Bellville eight near the end of the opening stanza, but lost the ball on downs.

Move to 1-Foot Line.

And then in the fourth moved to the Bellville one-foot line where they again lost the ball on downs.

Loudonville chalked up 16 first downs, 11 more than Bellville registered.

Galion Rips Redmen, 41-19, For 4th Win

GALION—Coach Johnny Burnison's Galion high Orangemen registered their second N. C. O. conference victory of the season under the lights here last night when they walloped Bucyrus, 41 to 19.

In winning their fourth straight game of the season, the Orangemen hung up 12 first downs to nine for the visitors and 308 yards from rushing and passing to 179.

Concentrating their attack on the ground, the Orangemen never trailed. They held a 20 to 0 lead at the half, and coasted the rest of the way, with reserves doing most of the playing in the final periods.

George Carroda tallied the first Galion touchdown in the second quarter on a buck from the four after Eugene Schreck had ripped off a 43-yard gain on an off-tackle play.

Bill Durschi returned a punt 90 yards for the second score, and Schreck ploughed over from the three for the third Galion touchdown in the second frame.

Held scoreless in the first half, the Redmen opened up a passing attack in the third quarter that yielded two touchdowns. Both scores were manufactured on by throws from Galitza to Souders. The same combination accounted for the other Bucyrus score in the fourth frame.

Galion put the game on ice in the fourth period when Durschi, Jack and Ernst tallied on short bucks.

Now for Victory.

The Coals will be decked out in new gold spangles Sunday when they engage the crack semi-pro representatives from Huntington, W. Va., and they expect to dedicate the new livery with a victory.

Bucher

Miller has worked the Coals overtime this week in preparations for the Huntington tussle, and he believes the result of the hard work will be told Sunday.

The Coals lost two heart-breaking decisions in their games to date, and Sunday may be their day.

Miller has no illusions about the size of the task confronting the Coalmen, but there is no reason why they can't win if their offense clicks as it has in practice. Kallmerten & Baer followers boast.

Huntington comes to the city Sunday with a record of 17 straight victories, and Kallmerten & Baer players hope to be the team to snip the string.

Miller will start a backfield consisting of Harper Au, Vern Heiser, Rabbit Siler and Gil Weigand against the strong visiting foe, with George Hummel, Paul Sturgeon, Gaylord Bucher, Socks La Rue, Ed Zediker, Jim Gordon and Fred Schwaner making up the forward wall.

Dominate Lineup.

Incidentally, the K-B lineup is composed almost entirely of former Mansfield high school stars.

Business Manager John Villella announced today that progress of the world series game will be announced at the park.

Ed Willard Contributes Touchdown as Carroll Wallops B-W, 25-6

(By Associated Press)

THE FOOTBALL FAN who reckons "value received" in terms of sensational runs and dazzling pass attacks feasted at Ohio college gridirons last night.

Sparkling performances were the fare in rousing battles under lights at New Concord, Cleveland, Findlay and Marietta.

The scores: Washington & Jefferson 21, Muskingum 7; John Carroll 25, Baldwin-Wallace 6; Kent State 13, Findlay 7; Marietta 28, Otterbein 0.

Youngstown college invaded Latrobe, Pa., where the St. Vincent college Bearcats defeated the Ohioans, 31 to 6.

The Presidents of W. & J. had the situation in hand in the first period at New Concord. Their superior power resulted in the season's initial blemish on Muskingum's record. Bob Drumm made a spectacular 51-yard run for Muskingum's third period tally.

Eddie Arsenault led Carroll's Blue Streaks to their first Cleveland Big Four victory in five years. The Thunderbolt zipped through the B-W defense for 80 yards and a touchdown, and also hurled a pass 40 yards to Ed Willard of Mansfield, an end, who raced 20 yards to the goal.

Kent State's victory over Findlay featured the power offense called "straight football." The Staters staged a 53-yard second period march to score and break a 7-all tie.

Capt. Bob Tate, Marietta halfback, chalked up three touchdowns in the Otterbein shut-out. The victors scored in every period.

At Latrobe, the Youngstown contingent marched 64 yards in a courageous last period comeback. Strosser of St. Vincent's and his substitute, Segatti, starred with brilliant touchdown dashes of 80 yards and 85 yards.

Madison Suffers First Defeat Since 1936 as Mt. Vernon Scores Twice In Last Period.

By CHARLES MARTIN

MADISON high school's hopes for another undefeated season were blasted under the incandescents in Mt. Vernon last night when the Rams bowed to the Yellow Jackets by a 12 to 0 count.

Coach Al Fendrick's green-uniformed gridders, with 155 points to their credit in the first three games, bowed to the only Class A team on its schedule.

It was the first defeat for the Rams since 1936, and it was also the third straight setback the township school has absorbed in competition with a team coached by Paul Snyder.

When Snyder coached at New London several years ago, the Rams dropped two decisions to the Wildcats.

3,000 See Game.

A homecoming crowd of 3,000 saw Madison's outweighed club stopped completely for the first time this year. The Rams gave the spectators an eyeful the opening half, but the battle of pushing around the heavier Yellow Jackets began to tell after the rest period, and from then on they were unable to do any damage.

Mt. Vernon, fighting desperately to register its second victory of the season, scored both touchdowns in the final frame after Madison had run, passed and driven up and down the field for almost three periods.

The Yellow Jackets' initial score followed a blocked punt on the Rams' 16, while the second was the result of some nifty running by a second string back, Stan White.

Mt. Vernon fans received a shock in the opening quarter when the Rams pounded away at the Jackets' powerful line and penetrated deep into the winners' territory. Not once during the half did Mt. Vernon have the ball in Madison territory.

The closest the victors moved toward Madison side of the field was to the Jackets' 45. The Rams registered six first downs in the half to the enemy's three.

Coach Fendrick's proteges fought and ploughed their way to the Jackets' three-yard stripe in the opening quarter, but lost the ball on downs. And again shortly after the opening of the second stanza Madison marched to the seven, but the Jackets's line held and took the ball on downs.

The third period developed into a punting duel with Joe Miller of Madison holding the edge.

But midway in the fourth chapter, Mt. Vernon struck the blow that toppled Madison's hopes. Bob Kunkle started it by blocking one of Miller's quick kicks and recovering it on the Rams' 16. On fourth down, Houston Schlosser rifled a pass to Bob Beach in the end zone. A poor pass from center cost the Jackets' try for the point.

Hardly had the fans settled back into their seats when Mt. Vernon suddenly came to life and started a march from its own 25 which ended in another touchdown.

Nugent Scores.

White, subbing for the injured Schlosser, started things rolling by reeling off a 41-yard jaunt. Three first downs placed the ball on the Rams' two and on fourth down Nugent smashed through center. Harris' drop kick for the point was wide.

The Jackets piled up 187 yards from rushing and 37 on passes, while the Rams picked up 68 from rushing and 53 on passes. Madison completed only six of 20 attempted forwards. Mt. Vernon collected 10 first downs and the Rams seven.

Madison held the edge in punting, however, averaging 31 yards, four yards better than Mt. Vernon.

Injuries handicapped Madison considerably last night. The Wilkins' twins, Bill and Bob, limped around during the contest. Bob, who aggravated an old leg injury and had to be helped off the field in the fourth period.

CLEVELAND — Chicago Bears roll into Cleveland Sunday to do battle with Cleveland's revived Rams. The game will be played at League park, with the opening kickoff coming at 2:15 p. m.

"Woods and Waters"

By YUNCKER BROS.

There is nothing that gets into the average sportsman's blood as the call of the outdoors at this time of the year. This is reunion time for man, dog and gun. Of the many breeds of dogs that give the sportsman the utmost for his time spent afield is the popular pointer or setter. They are a pleasure to watch in field trials as well as when on a shooting trip. We wing shooters in Ohio are not blessed with the same type of shooting that is to be had in many other states, our bird season is short and the bag limit low, and the ring neck pheasant is the game in question. Next in line for real enjoyment and tops with many comes the merrie little hound. He is in real demand just at this time with the field trials being run and the rabbit season just around the corner. The background of your trip afield these fine autumn days will be the splashing colors of the trees and the varied browns and gold of the fields.

The waterfowl season opens October 15th just after the close of the squirrel season. According to the report of the National Wildlife Federation, ducks are on the increase. A total of 757 000 duck stamps were sold in the fiscal year of 1937-38.

It seems hard to understand why some hunters think they are entitled to more game than allowed by law. The conservation department collected a tidy sum from squirrel hunters the past week who had killed more game than allowed. Among the violators was a Deputy Sheriff of Franklin county. County officials are supposed to enforce the law instead of breaking it. All roads will be patrolled during the open season and bag limits inspected. This meets with the approval of all sportsmen and fish and game associations who are working for the betterment of wild life regulations.

The annual dog show to be held at the Fairgrounds tomorrow gives promise to be the best ever. The committee on arrangements have made every effort to make this year's show outstanding. There will be three nationally known judges and several classes will be judged at the same time. The show will move on without delay. The final event will be a drag chase for the coon hounds. ITALY AGREES, PEACE IN SIGHT IN SPAIN'S WAR call of some war material, including airplanes and tanks, and reliable dispatches from Rome, at the time Il Duce departed for the four-power Munich conference, said he went prepared to take back 10,000 Italians from Spain.

Today's announcement in Rome, telling of the recall of the 10,000, was made in order to facilitate appointment of a French ambassador to Rome by the French cabinet at its meeting Tuesday, it was understood here.

It was stressed in Rome that the Italian troop removal does not mean that Italy intends to give up the Spanish war as a "bad job" but that it signifies merely Italy's intention of restoring peace to Europe.

According to all indications here, British recognition of Il Duce's Ethiopian conquest will follow immediately.

International News Service learned that Italian volunteers have been concentrated at key points in Spain for embarkation, and that the 10,000 withdrawn are due to arrive in Naples on Oct. 16.

All of those being removed are veterans of such battles as Guadalajaar, Malaga, and Santander.

It was learned on reliable authority, however, that Italy, while carrying out the withdrawal, is prepared for any eventuality—including the possibility that the Spanish government may fail to withdraw an equal number of alien troops from Spain.

Sources in a position to know said that Italian troops are placed strategically on Italy soil in sufficient numbers to deal the Spanish government a sudden "death blow" in the event the Barcelona regime fails to carry out its side of the bargain.

Insurgents Release American Prisoners.

HENDAYE, FRANCE (AT THE SPANISH FRONTIER) — (AP) — Fourteen American prisoners of the Spanish insurgents were released at the border town of Irun at noon today and crossed the International bridge into France.

They were released in exchange for the release by the Spanish government of an equal number of Italian aviators captured during the Civil war.

The exchange was arranged by U. S. Ambassador Claude G. Bowers.

As soon as the Americans crossed the border they asked for American cigarets and wanted to know how the world series had come out so far.

The names of the liberated prisoners included Charles A. Barr, 640 Oakland avenue, Steubenville.

Wearing ragged khaki uniforms, they were taken to the Spanish side of the International bridge under guard of insurgent soldiers and allowed to cross alone to the French side.

Nazis Won't Disarm Yet, Berlin Hears.

BERLIN—(AP)—All international talk and hopes about any disarmament plans Adolf Hitler may have were branded "decidedly premature" today by a foreign office spokesman.

"Our top men and those who determine foreign policies in other capitals have so many immediate things to worry about that the armaments question is necessarily in the background," the official asserted.

A prominent Nazi editor who is close to Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering added that "our fuehrer does not believe disarmament or even the limitation of armaments can be achieved until there has been first a restriction in the use of armaments."

With the arms question and the German colonial problem tenporarily in abeyance and with an indication seen of the gradual normalization of German-Czechoslovak relations, German diplomancy became centered on attempts to reach a French-German understanding.

Czechs Free German, Hungarian Prisoners.

(By the Associated Press)

The Czechoslovak government took quick steps today toward international pacification by granting amnesty to Hungarian, Sudeten German and Polish political prisoners and by naming Dr. Joseph Tiso to negotiate with Hungary on her claims to Magyar minorities within dismembered Czechoslovakia.

Swiftly cementing the state's new federal status, with Czech and Slovak equality, Dr. Tiso, prime minister of the autonomous Slovak state, and his colleagues were sworn in at a cabinet meeting.

Hungary, however, protested to Prague against continued Czechoslovak defense measures along the Hungarian-Czechoslovak frontier and charged "terror" had increased in Hungarian minority districts.

The German military advance into remaining Sudetenland districts to be occupied by Oct. 10, meanwhile, continued deeper into the broad rim of Czechoslovakia.

AERIE HOSTS TO DISTRICT

SHELBY—Shelby Aerie of the Eagles will be host to the meeting of District 19 of the Eagle lodge Sunday afternoon in this city. About 200 delegates are expected to attend.

The afternoon session will open at 2:30 p. m. when a district initiation of candidates will be held in charge of the Shelby lodge. The Shelby drill team, headed by Captain John Harley, will preside at the service.

Fred Garvin of this city, president of the Shelby lodge, will be in charge of the afternoon program. A chicken supper will be served at the close of the meeting. Delegates are expected from Mansfield, Ashland, Crestline, Galion and Loudonville.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, October 9.

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE holds auguries of a conflicting nature, with much prospect of mental activity, progressive ideas and proposals, but with certain frustrating or delaying influences to be taken into account. This might possibly be attributable to a bereavement or some other loss. But there are also promises or gain through property, sound investments or perhaps legal adjustments or agreements.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of conflicting experiences, with much gain, increased or stabilized fortunes through investment or favorable litigation.

A child born on this day may have a sound and progressive mentality. At the same time it should be profound and analytical.

For Monday, October 10.

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST is for a day of mental pressure involving problems or perplexities that demand quick action. A rather devastating influence is shown, but it actually will be in the direction of progress and constructive achievements, and perhaps in unusual channels.

Those whose birthday it is may not complain of a year of monotony or lack of adventure. Astrological forces and faculties indicate adventures into many lines of progress and unorthodox experience or adventure.

A child born on this day may be brilliant and versatile, original and creative, but its tempestuous, reckless or passionate nature may lead it into strange adventures.

AFRAID TO MARRY + + +

By HELEN WELSHIMER

(Copyright, 1938)

CHAPTER 14

IT WAS a normal, friendly conversation such as any two old friends might have that Judy shared with Craig. She pretended that she had called to tell him how much she liked Mary.

"You are lucky, Craig. She's lovely."

"Isn't she, Judy? I knew you would think so, too." He said it reverently, as though he spoke of the Madonna, Easter, or the Christmas star. There were miles of shining wires between the room in which Craig sat, as he talked to Judy and the boudoir at Marjorie's where she lounged on the chaise lounge as she talked. There were long strips of street, and acres of buildings, but across their pulsing beat Judy caught that note of worship. Ah, now she knew. Craig did love Mary. But loyalty to an old devotion had caused him to lose her. He had not failed her, Judy. She would not fail him.

She spoke slowly. "Craig, Marjorie's told me that Mary believed you married too quickly, and should have some time to consider. I know better. I'm sorry."

"Thanks, Judy. Let's forget it, shall me? Maybe Mary grew afraid of her voice. Three days is such a small slice out of a lifetime."

"But you are sure?"

"Absolutely!"

"So is she. Go tell her, Craig. Shes so helpless and she loves you so."

"Judy, you are about the grandest person—minus one—who ever lived. No, I'll not make even one exception."

But Craig did not win his suit with Mary. Marjorie, who flew to the coast for two weeks, told Judy, about it when she returned. Judy, meantime, had not found a job. She amused herself on rainy days by making sketches. She revamped some of her own clothes. She sold a set of the Encyclopedia Brittannica so she could eat.

"They were hard to digest mentally, anyway," she consoled the gap in her book shelves. "A hamburger and some beans will be much easier on my system. Besides, there are always libraries with encyclopedias if there is anything I have to know."

Judy decided, as she talked to Marjorie, that she would go to Mary. If it was over her that this foolish misunderstanding had arisen, it was up to her to right it.

One of her black dresses had been renovated merely because she felt creative. She put it on, and hunted for a provocative rose turban in her hat box. A rose coat, short and fitted, finished the ensemble.

"I'll give Craig back to you, Mary Banner," she said under her breath as she rang Mary's bell. "I'll return him all wrapped up in white tissue paper with a big blue bow on the package. Only, Mary, my dear, I never had him. You don't understand that. He loves you. That's why I'm coming. It's real love, Mary. Grasp it tightly. Lock it up. Love—seldom lasts."

No, that was not right advice. Love must be free. Free to blow where it would. If there were walls, it would climb them. If there were a gate, it would find the latch. Love was like mercury. If you tried to pick it up, it spread and spread. But if you were contented, it stayed quietly with you.

Mary was in. She had been practicing. Her piano held a scattered array of music. Her lounging pajamas were of a dull rose that grew paler beside the vibrant color of Judy's tam and coat.

Judy never knew, afterward, how she led into the subject of her call. She only knew that presently she was saying:

"Craig loves you so, Mary. He told me about it on the telephone two weeks ago. I thought then he would win you back almost at once. I'm an old friend, that's all."

She mustn't remember that once she had regarded him as the old friend, and he had professed his love for her. That was long ago. Last summer. Before he had met a girl with blue-black hair and dark, hurt eyes and a wistful mouth.

"He married me so swiftly. I never even wondered about it. Then I found out—it was you he had known for such a long time."

"But don't you see, Mary Banner? If there had been love between us we had years to make something happen. Don't let him down. He loves you!"

"You think so?" Mary's dark eyes were shining with tears. "Life isn't any good without him."

"Oh, I know," whispered Judy, but the words stayed in her heart. Not any good at all!

"May I tell you how we met?" Mary asked, as though she wanted a confidante. "I'd like to have you know."

Judy had not thought that she would ever know. Yet here was the answer to all her unasked questions.

"I was with my aunt at this house party. It was a large one and the house was palatial—golf course, tennis courts, swimming pool, verandas along the lake, and tea houses. Even a moon that looked as though it had been polished for the occasion."

"I remember—it was a perfect week-end." Yes, she remembered. It was that week-end she had stayed in town, waiting for Craig to hurry home so she could tell him her mind was made up, her heart at peace.

"The hostess was a queer old lady with a sharp tongue who said just what she pleased. She had a touch of rheumatism so I was having tea alone with her in the library one afternoon—Friday it was—when Craig came, hunting a book. The others were swimming."

Judy nodded. Mary was sweet and sympathetic. It would be she that the eccentric hostess would keep from the water sports.

"Mrs. Cabot—the hostess—looked us both over. Then she told Craig it was high time he married. He said he thought so, too, only . . ."

Judy waited, only her heart asked a question.

"He said that the girl he wanted didn't believe in love and marriage. Then Mrs. Cabot said there were other girls, and asked him why he didn't marry me. All the time we were drinking tall glasses of iced tea. Craig looked at me and smiled and laughed at the idea. He said some nice things, oh, perfunctory, expected ones, of course, but he took me sailing before dinner.

"At first it was all in fun. We tried to fool Mrs. Cabot. Then suddenly it was serious. I couldn't quite believe it. Sometimes, you know, you see a hat or a dress and you know it's been made for you. Maybe you never thought of it but when it comes it's just as though you don't need to shop any further. It was that way when I met Craig.

"I thought I'd have three days to put away in an album. But he felt that way, too, it seems. I mean he thought he did—"

Her voice trailed away, and a maid came from somewhere and snapped on the softly shaded lamps.

"He didn't think anything of the sort. He meant it!" Judy said.

Oh, it would be so easy, so very easy, to win Craig back. Now she could see how this marriage had happened. He had found Mary sweet and desirable and something had passed for love. Then Judy remembered the cathedral tones in his voice when he spoke of Mary. It had been something less than love at the beginning. But it was love now, full and complete.

She left quickly, Mary's warm gratitude following her.

"Im so glad you came. I won't doubt him any more. I'll call him now."

Someone spoke Judy's name as she passed through the lobby.

STOCK LEADERS AGAIN START UPWARD SWING

Steels, Rubber, Rails Gain on Early Trading; Business News Optimistic.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Leading stocks again pushed upward in today's early market dealings.

At an active opening gains running to a point were posted for Montgomery Ward, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Goodyear, Southern Pacific, N. Y. Central, General Electric and Loew's.

Business news, on the whole, continued as a sustaining market influence.

Encouraging was the statement of Montgomery Ward disclosing that despite the war scare and some bad shopping weather during September, the company's dollar sales volume topped the same 1937 month by nearly 3 per cent.

Strikes on the west coast and storm conditions in New England were blamed for a drop in the country's department store sales in the week ended Oct. 1.

Sterling, at $4.78⅜, was unchanged at the beginning of foreign currency transactions. The French franc was up .00⅛ of a cent at 2.67⅜ cents.

Mrs. Dirlam will spend the winter near Leland Stanford university, the school her two children, Tracy and Mary Lou, were attending before their deaths in an airplane crash. In the three months that followed the crash when an intensive search was being conducted for the plane, she spent considerable time in the company of her children's schoolmates at Stanford. Mrs. Loughridge and her daughter will return home in December.

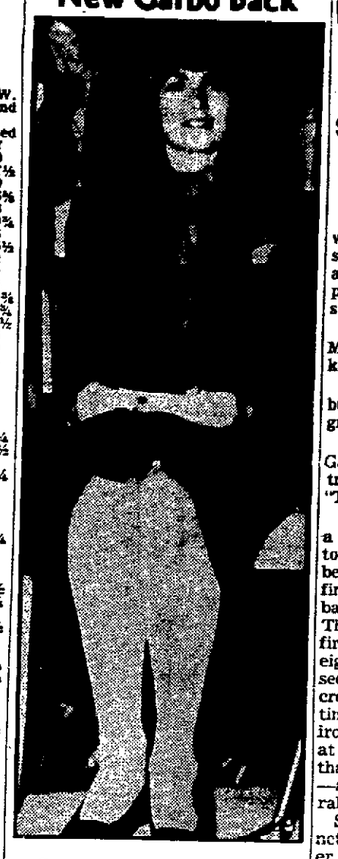
New Garbo Back



Greta Garbo, Swedish Sphinx of motion pictures, was back in America today after an absence of almost a year, and with a complete reversal of attitude toward reporters and the public in general. She talked, she smiled, she answered questions—all but one. Whether or not she is married to Leopold Stokowski, orchestra conductor, with whom she held a romantic rendezvous in Italy last spring. To that question she only smiled in the same old Sphinx-like manner and said: "If I were I am afraid you would all know it." The actress is shown as she arived in New York yesterday.

GABBY SEEKING WINNING HAND

was only 19 years old he was signed on as a Yankee farm hand and then cut adrift because the powers didn't think he had the stuff.

It seems fairly certain that Monte Pearson goes for the Yankees today.

Hartnett's chances are thin, but his hopes are as wide as his grin.

"We'll take 'em, we'll take 'em," Gabby chanted as though he were trying to hypnotize himself. "They were lucky in Chicago."

Win or lose, Gabby will put on a show for the New York fans today. He really has no business being in the ball game, for two fingers on his throwing hand are badly chewed up by foul tips. There were times during those first two games in Chicago when eight of the Cubs on the field seemed to be a listless, heartless crew. But there never was a time when Gabby, the man in the iron mask, wasn't shaking his fist at the Yankees in defiance—a fist that was white with adhesive tape—and calling on the Cubs for a rally.

Should Bryant lose today, Hartnett would have to decide whether to send big Bill Lee, who got knocked around in the first game, back in there or blow some kind of a weird whistle and summon grandpappy Charley Root, 39, oldest player in the big leagues, from out his glorious past.

No matter what happens today Rufus the Red Ruffin is rested and ready to go tomorrow for New York.

Just to show you that figures don't mean much unless you put them inside a bathing suit, the composite box score for the first two games indicates that the best team lost. The Cubs outhit and outfielded the Yankees. Hartnett's men slammed McCarthy's pitchers for the respectable batting average of .303. The Yankees were able to hit only .279. The Yankees have committed three errors for a fielding average of .963; the Cubs have made only one error for an average of .987.

Three games will be played in New York unless the Yankees take it in four straight. Should the Cubs win two of those games it will be necessary to journey back to Chicago to settle the issue.

Stop Davey's Pay, Remove Him From Office, Kasch Says

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Gov. Martin L. Davey was accused today by the irrepressible Gu Kasch, profolic Democratic legislator from Akron, of having gone on a sit-down strike as chief executive and thereby having forfeited the office.

Rep. Kasch, whose chief claim to fame rests upon the introduction of a record number of bills in the legislature—none of which ever became law—demanded today that the state auditor:

1. Stop the governor's pay.

2. Stop delivery of any more food, drink, supplies or furnishings to the executive mansion.

3. Command Adjt. Gen. Emil F. Marx of the Ohio National Guard to remove Governor Davey from the $125,000 governor's residence.

4. Stop payment on all pending bills at the executive mansion until sued by creditors or ordered to pay the bills by the attorney general.

5. Refuse to recognize the governor as the chief executive and consider Lieut. Gov. Paul P. Yoder as "acting" governor until midnight Dec. 31, 1938.

speech at Findlay that election of Republican officials would aid in putting Ohio "back on a sound business basis."

"I know the cost of government can be cut," he said and explained that while serving as attorney general he saved Ohio $45,000.

Sawyer referred to Bricker's campaign promise that if elected he would increase the civil service commission membership from two to three.

"He (Bricker) posed as a friend of civil service when he made the statement," Sawyer said. "But when you look beneath what do you find?"

"You find a promise to plunge the commission itself into the worst kind of spoils politics. The civil service commission is now composed of one Republican and one Democrat. Under the law it must be non-partisan. And what would happen to the balance after January if my opponent has his way? He would up-set the present by-partisan equilibrium by giving it a two-to-one partisan bias."

Bricker again termed the federal social security boards' suspension of its share of Ohio old-age pension payments a move by Democrats to win the election for Sawyer.

"Pensions, the WPA and relief should be taken out of politics," he said.

Not That It Matters

Fate of Czechs Should Open Eyes of U. S. On Subversive Influences

—By JANE WILLIAMS

ONE POINT in the Spencer Irwin speech here this week on the European situation should sound an ominous warning to Americans. When someone in his audience asked him why Czechoslovakia, when it first began to realize that subversive German propaganda was at work within the democracy, didn't do something drastic to counteract it, Irwin said: "Because Czechoslovakia was bending over backwards in its efforts to be a real democracy, to give every person and clique the right to think and act as they pleased."

Does that mean anything to you? Doesn't it remind you of the fact that the German Bunds and the Soviet Communists have been at work here for years and nothing much has been done about it; first because we're too democratic, and second because, like the Czechs, we think we can deal with it when the crisis comes.

And again like the Czechs, our destiny is uncertain because our "friends" may decide it for us when the time comes. How much simpler and surer to deal with the problem now before it becomes a crisis!

THE threat to take the CCC camp from Mohican park, probably to please someone who has political pull, should arouse Mansfielders and residents in this district to sending protesting telegrams and letters immediately to Senator Robert Bulkley, Cleveland, and to Congressman William Ashbrook, Johnsville.

Mohican park, under the work of the CCC has become one of the beauty spots of the state and is close enough to Mansfield that hundreds of citizens make it a regular recreational center during the summer and fall. If the CCC camp is removed to another part of the state, Mohican will fall into the discard and revert to its original state.

So long as we've got it and our federal taxes help to finance the CCC, let's keep it. Letters and telegrams become powerful when there are enough of them. Let's fight for it in the next few weeks.

THINGS I Forgot To Tell You Before: Mrs. W. W. C. wants to know why English isn't taught in Quebec schools since it's under English government. Because there are no public schools in Quebec. Every school is operated by a church parish whether its Catholic or Anglican, and so there isn't a lot of regulation by the government. The church bears all of the expense, too...

In the capital city of Quebec, which has a population of 144,000 there is only 5 per cent of it foreign, meaning Americans and Europeans, and only one colored person in the entire city. He's the chiropodist of the city...

Autos cost three to four hundred dollars more around the Gaspe, and the license fees would knock you deader than a mackerel. License plates cost $135 for an average car, with $5 for driver's license. And Mine Host at the hotel is one of two citizens in his town who carry auto insurance for full coverage. It costs him over $200 a year. I couldn't believe it so I asked him to write it out on paper. It was still $200.

IN CASE you're interested in some of the facts about Boys Town, Neb., it's 21 years old, is the only incorporated village of its kind in the world, and now has a population of 200 abandoned, homeless boys, some of whom have been juvenile delinquents. There are 75 teachers and staff workers at Boys Town, many of whom have graduated from the town itself.

Of the 4,300 boys who have passed through Father Flanagan's unique village, none have ever mixed up with the police since leaving there and 95 per cent are normal, respectable citizens. Father Flanagan's simple creed is the same in real life as in the picture: "There Are No Bad Boys." Boys Town is supported even now by public subscriptions.

Paid Dem Leader, 'Slot' Operators Testify

PAYOFF WASN'T DISCUSSED WITH SHERIFF, CLAIM

Defendants In Lorain County Trial Get Week-End Respite, Take Stand Monday.

BULLETIN

ELYRIA —(AP)— Lorain county commissioners today asked Sheriff William F. Grall to "resign immediately." Commissioners unanimously passed a motion a few minutes after Sheriff Grall had told Commissioners John Davidson and E. W. DeChant at a private conference that he "was not ready to resign."

(By Associated Press)

ELYRIA—The bribery trial of five Lorain county slot machine operators was in recess today after three defendants testified "protection" payments were made only to Al G. Bauer, Elyria Democratic leader, and not to law enforcement officers.

David Crawford, jr., Stanton Hobbs and Harry Ziegman denied from the witness stand yesterday that they ever talked to Sheriff William F. Grall, concerning territorial concessions and a weekly "payoff."

David Crawford, sr., and William Peer, the other admitted "slots" operators, are expected to testify on Monday.

$2.50 Weekly "Take."

Grall, former Chief Deputy William G. Smith and Bauer, who testified for the state, said that the accused men paid $2.50 "protection" a week on each slot machine in operation.

The defendants testified they paid Bauer after he had assigned operating "spots" to them, threatening to prosecute them if they refused to comply.

The younger Crawford said he "never talked with the sheriff except to say 'hello'." He said Bauer proposed the $2.50 weekly payment.

Hobbs testified the defendants "knew Bauer was a big Democrat and we were forced to pay because he said he would pick up our machines and prosecute."

Siegman said he paid Bauer "without asking questions."

"Bauer was a politician and I thought he was using it (the money) in politics," Ziegman added.

Grall has denied reports current that he plans to resign. Any action on his part, he said, "will be determined by public sentiment after this trial is over."

The end on the one of the youthful teams hid behind the tree, then the quarterback threw the ball to him and the youngster scampered over the line with the winning touchdown.

HOUSE PROBER ACTS TO DRIVE OUT ESPIONAGE

Says He'll Follow Roosevelt Recommendations Against Alien Propagandists.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Rep. Martin Dies, (D-Tex.), chairman of the house committee investigating un-American activities, announced today that he would sponsor legislation effectuating President Roosevelt's recommendations for a drive against spies and alien propagandists.

When congress convenes next January, Dies said, he would offer a comprehensive legislative program designed to co-ordinate federal machinery for a drive to stamp out activities of agents of foreign governments in this country.

He proposed a central agency to handle all problems of foreign propaganda and espionage; outlawing of political groups under control of foreign principals and strengthening of immigration and deportation laws.

Orders Survey.

Dies announced his plans after President Roosevelt disclosed at Hyde Park that he has ordered a survey of methods of controlling foreign espionage in this country and favors creation of a centralized federal agency to co-ordinate counter espionage.

Mr. Roosevelt said that he feels that the present federal machinery used to combat spies and propagandists is to diversified. It now is divided among the treasury, state, navy, war and justice departments.

Dies characterized Mr. Roosevelt's statement of the problem as "splendid," and said foreign espionage in this country represents "a grave situation."

Officials in G-2, the war department intelligence section, said privately that they believe spy activity is increasing as a result of world unrest and the vast international armament race.

OK'S $15,000 LEGION GRANT

Judge Approves Allocation Given Vets To Send Band To Coast Convention.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—A common pleas judge placed his stamp of approval today on a $15,000 grant the state emergency board made last month to the American Legion to send musical units to the national convention in Los Angeles.

Upholding the power of the board to make the allotment, Judge Charles A. Leach denied late yesterday the request of Arnett Harbage, West Jefferson farmer often called the treasury's unofficial "watchdog," for an injunction against the grant.

Mrs. Agnes B. Dickinson, attorney for Harbage, had questioned the constitutionality of the law creating the emergency board and argued the Legion, not a department of the state government, was not entitled to the grant at any time.

Judge Leach's opinion said: "The essential legislative functions have been retained by the general assembly delegating to the emergency board only such discretion . . . as is necessary to afford that flexibility and practicability recognized as necessary and not in conflict with the constitution."

Of the Legion itself he asserted: "The statutory definition clearly embraces the American Legion because, by repeated and long continued practice, it is an organization which receives and has received, by direct appropriations made by the legislature, support from the state."

The grant was made to pay expenses of the Canton band, Massillon drum corps and Crooksville quartet to the convention.

LIVESTOCK 'BLUE BLOODS' PUT ON ANNUAL SHOW AT COLUMBUS

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS—Taking on the appearance of another state agriculture exposition, the state fair grounds today was a beehive of activity as the 29th annual National Dairy show opened with more than 900 head of cattle, 943 to be exact, on display.

Coming from 27 states and three Canadian provinces they will compete for grand championships and $15,200 in cash awards. In addition 99 exhibitors yesterday set up their various displays for the show, which is expected to attract an attendance of 100,000 before closing time next Saturday.

But the cattle were not to enter the spotlight until Monday when judging of the five breeds, Jerseys, Guernseys, Holsteins, Brown Swiss and Ayrshires, gets under way.

Scheduled for today were thee collegiate dairy cattle and the 4-H club judging contests. A concert by the official United States band and the beginning of the Buckeye State Music jubilee are slated for tonight.

The Texas A. & M. judging team will defend the collegiate title it won last year, when the national show was also held in Columbus. Twenty-seven other teams will attempt to wrest the title from the Texas college. Burt Oderkirk, of Dekalb, Ill., is in charge of the contest.

At the same time the collegians began judging, hundreds of high school students, members of 4-H clubs, will compete for scholarships, cash prizes and medals in their division. Winners will be announced at the American Dairy Associate banquet tomorrow night.

FAIR ENOUGH!

Paint Job, Hood Vary In Italy, Germany But Car Has a Marxian Chassis

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—Now that the Dies committee has placed our Hitler-True Nazis and naturalized Italian Fascists and the consuls of both nations over the same barrel where lately the Communist conspirators were getting their licks, there comes from the ranks of the bolos and their "fellow travelers" no such strident protests as recently decried the committee's Red hunt.

The bolos and their "fellow travelers" called that phase of the investigation of un-American activities a Red hunt, and I see no reason to pretend otherwise.

Red hunting, like the hunting of Nazi and Fascist conspirators against the American form of government, is a legitimate duty of that government. The investigation of Nazism and Fascism has followed the same general line as the investigation of Communistic activities and has been, unfortunately, superficial and unskilled.

The assignment is one that deserved better talent and more serious intentions on the part of the house of representatives.

It may be remembered that when the Dies committee was revealing the Communist influence in the CIO, the WPA, the Workers' Alliance and the League for Peace and Democracy, and tracing the beam of inspiration from Moscow to the American Communist group, ridicule, insult and deliberate misrepresentation were the answer from the far left.

Now it is the turn of the Nazi bund and the Italian conspirators to defend themselves, and it may be noted that, like the Communists, they rely on irrelevances rather than disproof.

If the bolos had resented the investigation of Communism on the ground that Communism holds an exclusive franchise for un-American activities, having pioneered the field, they would have justified their approval of the current hunt for Nazis and Fascists.

But they took the position that any such interference at all was of itself an un-American activity and thereby assumed a duty to deplore with equal passion the prescient intrusion into the impudent treacheries of their rivals.

The Communists have been advertising their Russian product as a 20th Century Americanism, forgetting that a Nazi or Fascist, having the same moral principles, might with equal truth—which is to say none at all—and probably with more effect, describe his ism as Jefferson and Lincoln in streamline version.

The Communists have taken to themselves the word "Worker," forgetting again, that the workers of Italy and Germany are now their enemies and that in this country millions of people who work will angrily resent the implication that because they detest all alien conspiracy and reptilian methods in their own country they must be loafers and drones.

It is too easily forgotten that Mussolini, originator of Fascism, was himself once a radical Socialist, and that Fascism, from which Hitler copied Nazism, is but a custom job mounted on the old standard Marxian chassis.

The paint job and shape of the hood vary in Italy and Germany, compliant with local needs and lunacies but Mussolini and his plagiarist playmate are driving the same jalopy that Joseph Stalin rides in.

The method of penetration in this country is the same on both sides. The Communist party, never original, works through the anti-American groups of naturalized conspirators.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 8, 1938.

Drive carefully tomorrow—a fool is known by his folly when driving a car.

Civilization aspires to world peace before it has even advanced beyond family and neighborhood quarrels.

All pension plans thus far put forward prescribe a minimum age for starting. A more popular idea would be to have a pension start at any age the prospective recipient thinks he could use it.

Campaign Gets Under Way.

WITH election only a month ahead, Europe's war scare at least temporarily in abeyance, the world series near conclusion and football settled down for its two-months' stay, public interest can again turn to politics for a brief spell—with promise of lively campaigning in Mansfield.

With both sides expressing confidence, Democrats and Republicans in Mansfield and Richland county are in the early stages of what promises to be a vigorously pressed campaign for their state and district candidates.

Political technique in the senatorial race, with the Bulkley and Taft debates starting tonight, harks back to pre-Civil war times for the famous example set by Lincoln and Douglas in a series of debates that have found a place in history.

While a tinge of bitterness has already been evidenced in campaign utterances, it may be hoped that this will be kept to a minimum and that candidates for various offices will confine themselves to discussion of issues and presentation of their own qualifications, rather than indulging in vituperative attacks on their opponents.

Public confidence in politicians and office-seekers has sunk to such a low ebb, during the past four years of administration of state business, that promises made during a campaign count for little with voters, and the lambasting of one side by the other carries small weight with people who have had frequent opportunity to contrast promises and performance.

During the next few weeks voters should take advantage of every possible opportunity to learn something about each of the candidates, including as much of the background of record for past performance as can be obtained.

Intelligent choice can then be made on the basis of qualifications and probable conduct in office, if elected, rather than from mere partisan preference.

To Vote On Park Commission.

MANSFIELD'S long-awaited opportunity to "take its parks out of politics" will come at next month's election when the matter of establishing a park commission will be voted on.

While Mansfield people have been "park-conscious" for many years, as evidenced by early bequests of park sites, the importance of establishing and maintaining recreational and beauty spots in various parts of the city has been more generally realized in recent years, as Mansfield has grown far beyond its original bounds and increased greatly in population.

Up to this time the supervision of Mansfield public parks has been made a part of changing city administrations, with choice of a park superintendent dependent on partisan political activity and need of a job, rather than on qualifications for the position.

Naturally this condition has permitted no continuity of a park improvement program, nor has it assured interested supervision of park upkeep and development.

With the selection of three citizens, interested in parks and city beautification, serving as a park commission—without compensation—and with employes chosen on the basis of qualifications instead of politics, the proposed change gives promise of working a considerable betterment in Mansfield's park system—which has been permitted to deteriorate noticeably in recent years.

Danger of Fascist World.

PRESIDENT BENES, democratic statesman and creator of the Czechoslovakian republic, gives up and resigns. The cabinet headed by Jan Syrovy, war hero, is revamped, and the shrunken and shell-shocked little nation is snuggling up to Germany, its destroyer. Perhaps there is nothing else for it to do, since its democratic allies deserted it.

Meanwhile Britain and France are moving rapidly toward a four-power agreement with the Fascist dictators, Hitler and Mussolini. They will necessarily give as well as take in any such arrangement. From recent experience, the world will expect them to give the dictators more than they get. And their example is likely to be imitated by smaller powers which have been uncertain which way to jump.

Britain and France have deserted Russia, their former ally, and now Stalin may get busy building up a Communist bloc, if he can find any tractable neighbors that have not yet taken sides. Japan will continue her own type of dictatorship. What is happening to Spain and some of the other small powers is hard to guess.

It begins to look, though, like a Fascist world. The high hopes for democracy lately expressed in many quarters are deflated. All the more reason, then, for America hanging on. We must keep the faith in this New World, even if it fails in the Old.

Traffic 'Tattlers.'

EVANSTON, Ill., the college town just north of Chicago, starts something again. A system of information they call "tattling" has been installed by the police accident bureau, in charge of a woman secretary.

People are encouraged, when they see traffic violations to call up and tell about them, giving the numbers of the offending cars. Then the bureau writes to the drivers, warning them that if they offend again they will be arrested and prosecuted.

Americans don't like tattling, yet such procedure is probably justifiable in view of the importance of safe driving. There are drivers in every community who habitually flout the law and endanger life and property. Safe driving is to their own advantage as well as the public's. Many would drive more safely if they knew they were likely to be reported for carelessness or recklessness.

Watching Trends

—By PRESTON GROVER

WASHINGTON — When President Roosevelt suggested that fast communication facilitated keeping the peace in Europe even though at the same time it speeded up the crisis, he revived a chain of historical memories of times when lack of such fast communication played fancy pranks with this country's affairs.

Probably it never will be known just what influence the radio and fast travel had in the Czechoslovakian affair. The same doubts continue even now over affairs of many years ago which were affected by communication distinguished not by its speed but by its slowness.

A case arose right at the beginning of the republic to show a sharp contrast with present times. Benjamin Franklin in 1778 negotiated with France a defensive alliance to bolster the Revolution It was to be kept secret from England. But Franklin's trusted secretary, Dr. Edward Bancroft, was also a British spy and he promptly informed the British of the proposed alliance. England had already decided to seek a reconciliation with the colonies by repealing all the "intolerable acts." Learning of the proposed alliance, the British sent a fast ship to America with the terms of reconcilation.

Peace Boat Was Late.

BUT the French treaty also was speeding to America from Paris for ratification by the U. S The French treaty ship won the race. The British arrived later The choice wines and terrapin they sent to American officials as a friendly gesture were hugely enjoyed by the French and Americans in celebrating ratification of the treaty.

What would have happened if the British, upon learning of the proposed secret French treaty, had broadcast or telegraphed from London the terms of the proposed reconciliation?

Battle After Peace Made.

THE lack of communication which had a hand in diplomacy at the end of the Revolution also played its part in the beginning and end of the War of 1812. The British, hard pressed in their war with Napoleon, belatedly decided to end the hated "orders in council" interfering with American commerce. The United States, unaware of this overseas change of heart, and urged on by other elements, declared war against England on June 18, 1812. Five days later the British, in turn unaware that they were at war with the U. S. repealed the "orders in council."

Every school boy is familiar with the famous battle in which Andrew Jackson defeated the British at New Orleans after the treaty of peace in the War of 1812 had been signed. Neither army knew of it, so they fought. Who can tell what might have happened had the treaty of peace been broadcast over an international hookup?

The battle likely would not have been fought. Instead, Jackson won a great victory, vastly increasing the prestige and morale of the United States. Even more important, he made himself a national hero whose political policies are influential even now, a hundred years after he was president.

This war, which began in a mess, was fought in a mess and thus ended in a mess.

By the time of the Civil war, the telegraph was invented, and such confusion ended.

ANOTHER FACE THAT NEEDS SAVING

Skeptical Toward Europe's 'Peace'

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Everyone is glad, of course, that another world war was staved off by the recent Chamberlain-Daladier-Hitler-Mussolini conference in Munich. Nevertheless, a certain undertone of comment is audible in diplomatic and domestically official circles in Washington to the effect that a major conflict was not averted (maybe only temporarily) exactly as genuine peace lovers might have wished.

What these folk had hoped was that Herr Hitler would have his hand so obviously called as to make it impossible for Germany itself not to recognize him as a bluffer. Had this occurred the best guess is that he would have been sufficiently deflated at home to terminate his fuehrership in short order.

Instead he has been strengthened, if anything. And, while Adolf remains in power, not many observers believe that international tranquility can last long. To his promises not the slightest weight is given.

Neutral spokesmen would like to see Mussolini eliminated, too. However, Benito is given credit at least for being sane. The fuehrer's sanity is seriously questioned. Besides, Italy alone is not strong enough to precipitate a very formidable war. Germany, plus complications, is.

War—If and When.

WAR would (or will, if and when) be terrible.

Still, it generally is agreed, outside Germany and Italy, that it couldn't end otherwise than in the dictatorial pair's defeat. Hitler would be killed or jump the Fatherland, like the ex-kaiser, or be interned on an island, like Napoleon, or some such thing. Ditto Mussolini, probably. Which would be tragic and dignified and all that. But it would be permanent. The drawback is that it would cost some millions of lives and untold misery and, in addition, perhaps put a period to present day so-called civilization.

Calling the dictators' bluff and making them look ridiculous would have been much better.

Only—it was tried and didn't work. Hitler stood pat. Mussolini, the more rational of the two, yielded a trifle. Yet the dictators got away with it; the democracies hadn't quite enough nerve.

Personally I think Russia ought to have been invited in on the democratic side. The trouble is that the democracies so hate communism as to balk, 100 per cent, at any partnership with Moscow. Well, communism is unlovable to the democratic mind. All the same, it's more democratic than outright absolutism, such as Germany's or Italy's. It's theoretically democratic at least, which is more so than Naziism or Fascism are.

* * *

And Now What?

YES, and now what? President Roosevelt hints at an international conference to terminate the nations' frictions for good and all.

Premier Chamberlain of Britain proposes the same thing.

But that program has been attempted again and again. It has fizzled uniformly. Treaty after treaty has gone flooey since the dicker at Versailles. Negotiators like Hitler's and Mussolini's are less reliable than earlier ones were.

This thing the other day at Munich was written in water. American money, among other interests, views it with its fingers crossed.

There is one reassuring feature.

Sooner or later Hitler and Mussolini are sure to clash.

Their plans conflict basically. Germany is stronger than Italy, but Mussolini has more sense than Hitler.

They'll quarrel presently.

And, when stick-up men quarrel between themselves, their would-be victims are liable to get a modicum of their dues.

Listen, World!

How Real Are You?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THESE people who never quite "click"—what's the matter with them?

Seemingly they have all the makings of popularity and success. They're nicely dressed, friendly, easy on the eye, eager to help. They're ready to do anything, go anywhere, agree with any wish or opinion you may express. And yet—

They're always left out of the lists! People like them for a little while, then forget them. Somebody else gets the chance, the invitation or the friendship or which they've set their hearts. Why?

They themselves can give you a dozen reasons. They have "no luck." Other people are "jealous of them," "do them dirt." They're sensitive, timid, self-conscious. They "can't push themselves forward the way coarser people can."

Endless reasons. A little truth in all of them, perhaps. Yet—the main reason for their failure is something entirely different.

Why doesn't the world give these people a real break?

BECAUSE THEY'RE NOT REAL PEOPLE.

"But everybody's real!"

No, stranger, you're wrong. Millions of people aren't real—never even try to be real. Millions of people spend their lives trying to be like somebody else, trying to "do the proper thing," whether it suits or expresses them or not.

Such people live in a strange dream, in which brief hope and excitement alternate with long spells of fear, discouragement and resentment. Constantly they whisper to themselves:

"If only I could be like other people!"

And in that effort to "be like other people" they toil tirelessly. They read the "right" books even though they can't understand them. They wear the "right" clothes, or go to the "right" places, even though they don't like them. Yet, it's all in vain! In spite of all their efforts, they create no impression, establish no power.

Other people—homelier women, more stupid men — "people who don't try half as hard"—are liked, loved, quoted, respected — given the "breaks," while they are lost in the shuffle. "Nobody ever takes them serious." Why?

BECAUSE THERE'S NOTHING TO TAKE SERIOUSLY.

Why do we like people? We like people because of what they are. We like or dislike people because they are themselves. We may sometimes, because it flatters our conceit, encourage yes-men. But we soon weary of people who try to be reflections of ourselves, who ape our manners and echo our notions.

We want people to be REAL.

FOR PEOPLE WHO AREN'T REAL AREN'T REALLY PEOPLE! They fail in all the qualities which we expect of our close friends or helpers. They're not really as amusing as a good phonograph record, or as reliable as a robot. They are only echoes—and you can never count on an echo.

The world despises people who aren't REAL. And never has it had so little use for them as it has now, for never has there been as great need of sincerity, originality, initiative-self-starting personality.

Are YOU trying to find your place in the world? Are you failing to click, in spite of your tremendous effort to Please Everybody? Then ask yourself just one question — and try to answer it honestly:

HOW REAL AM I?

A Kindly Service.

Editor News-Journal:

One of the finest things that has come to my attention in recent years, one of the most hopeful signs of a better day, was the kindly deed performed by Police Officers Yoakam and Schuck.

A young colored girl en route to Indianapolis had the misfortune to lose her money at the local bus station, without which she was unable to proceed to her destination, or return to Columbus, from whence she came.

It happened that she was an orphan, and unfortunately without friends or family, but the Providence who watches over all led her to these two police officers who in turn brought her to our church where I live, and after making her a personal donation, they left her in our care. My wife immediately got in touch with Ed Tillman, Mose Haynes, "Bun" Drye, Ernest Smith, Albert Ward and others, the result of which was, an amount was raised which more than covered her fare to Indianapolis.

In a world of strife and conflict, one sometimes wonders whether civilization is worth saving, and often one despairs of life, but incidents like these indicate that even in the midst of chaos of a changing world, the spirit of Christ, the spirit of peace and good will, is still very much alive. Reading of so much crime, and criminals, it is the usual thing to "ride" our police, to unthinkingly accuse our law enforcement agencies of laxness, and when they attempt to enforce the law, they are equally "panned."

They are thought of as cold, indifferent and heartless. But if we in Mansfield could know of all the kindly deeds performed by our unassuming, self-effacing police officers, I think we would be proud of them. The incident mentioned is only one of several of which I have knowledge. Let us all obey the laws, praise our police department, and thus help them to be better guardians of the law.

What's Happened?

Week-End Summary of Current Events.

ADOLF HITLER—his face frozen in a solemn stare, his right arm extended stiffly in the Nazi salute—rode in triumph this week into the ancient natural fortress of Bohemia. Over cobbled streets that were old when Columbus discovered America, his open car rolled slowly under flowered arches lettered in German: "The Sudetenland greets its liberator."

At Eger, near the frontier, the parade of German troops with dahlias in their gun barrels, paused and Hitler made a speech: "Never again will this land be torn away from the reich."

Map Remade.

Egerland, the gateway to a rich industrial region on Czechoslovakia's western boundary with Germany, was the third sector of former Czech territory to be occupied by Hitler's legions since the four-power conference at Munich last week dispelled the threat of a second world war by deciding on peaceful partition of that war-born republic.

German occupation began on schedule at the stroke of midnight between Sept. 30 and Oct. 1.

Poland, meanwhile, had cut herself a slice of Czechoslovakia. Hungary clamored for a slice, too.

After Thoughts.

Thus Europe kept the peace. But the hangovers from last week's war scare were terrific, and none was worse than Czechoslovakia's. "We had to choose between a useless fight and sacrifices," Premier Syrovy told his people. Surveying those sacrifices—territorial, military and industrial—Syrovy revamped his cabinet and prepared for reconstruction with the aid of a loan from Britain. While Nazis talked of "reparations for injustices inflicted by the Czechs on the Sudetens since 1918," Czech President Benes resigned.

Primine Minister Chamberlain defended the settlement before parliament, however, as the only thing that saved Europe from a horrible war. And the commons, after three days of debate, approved a government motion to adjourn.

France gloomily got her boys out of the trenches they hadn't used, and worried about: (1) How to pay the mobilization bill; (2) the future of French influence in European affairs.

At Home

McCarthy's Chance.

For two years the New York Yankees, whose manager is Joseph V. McCarthy, have dominated the baseball business. In '36 and '37 the Yankees won the American league championship and vanquished the National league champions in the world series. In '38, again, the Yankees won in the American league. And McCarthy, who never played major league baseball, had a chance to become the first manager in history to lead a team to three world series victories in a row. The Yankees' opponents are the Chicago Cubs. The Yankees gave McCarthy a good start by winning the first game 3-to-1 and the second 6-3 They need four to take the series.

1,200 Paul Reveres.

The U. S., not to be outdone by Europe, is holding its own air-raid warning tryouts:

Enemy bombers strike from plane carriers in the Atlantic toward Fort Bragg, N. C. Civilian volunteers—1,200 of them in 300 listening posts—spot the raiders and telephone Fort Bragg. Defense planes take off from there to beat back the attack.

That's how it will go if the system operates as speedily as army men hope. Trial warnings were put through the network this week without a hitch. The actual tests, complete with blackouts, are scheduled for the coming week.

Oldsters Cut Off.

Ohio officials failed to show up, a month ago, for a federal Social Security board hearing on charges of inefficiency in the state administration of old-age pensions. Board Chairman A. J. Altmeyer called their absence "an admission of the truth of the charges," and Ohio's Gov. Davey accused the board of "dirty politics." Now the board has decided Ohio oldsters shall have no more federal money until the state administration mends its ways.

Abroad

Peace for Spain?

One of the things Britain's prime minister hopes will lead out of the four-power agreement at Munich is "a more general settlement" of other troubles threatening Europe's peace. No. 1 among those is the Spanish war, which could be ended by: (1) Victory for the insurgents; (2) victory for the government; (3) some sort of compromise. Signs since the Munich meeting have pointed in all three directions.

Gen. Franco celebrated the second anniversary of his command by making a belligerent speech which, some observers thought, indicated the insurgents expect more foreign aid. Rumors that Italy was taking her troops out of Spain, to permit a government victory, flew so thick that high Fascist authorities felt obliged to deny them semi-officially.

No News Is Bad News.

The world looked to Russia this week for some sign of the effect of the Munich conference (at which Russia was conspicuously absent) on her long-standing friendship with France. Russian officials remained sullenly silent, but a newspaper that often speaks for the foreign office spoke of the Soviet-French alliance in the past tense.

What Moscow newspapers didn't say also was news this week, for no paper has printed recently the name of Marshal Vassily K. Bleucher, commander of the Soviet far eastern army during last summer's miniature Russo-Japanese war. That looked bad for Marshal Bleucher, and rumors had him transferred, demoted, even arrested.

Rumors of War.

A favorite Oriental legend is the one about men training apes to act like human beings. This week it cropped up in the Chinese war when a Japanese correspondent reported from a "reliable source" that the Chinese had trained 5,000 orang-outangs to throw hand-genades.

Observers took more stock in reports that Japan was getting ready for the long-expected drive on south China.

Politics

Look to November.

North, south, east and west, the biennial fall political campaigns roared full-speed this week toward Nov. 8, when 47 states (Maine voted last month) will elect 35 U. S. senators, 432 congressmen, 33 governors and scores of lesser officials.

In the primaries, now completed, interest was centered on senate and house nomination races by the attempts of a New Deal faction to "purge" the Democratic party of several alleged anti-administration legislators.

But for some of the best fights in the November finals, political dopesters say, watch the governorship races—results of which may make or break the 1940 hopes of several presidential possibilities.

Labor

Railroad Ruckus.

Oct. 1 was the day set for the first nation-wide railroad strike in U. S. history. But the trains are still running, and likely will continue to run at least until Nov. 27. Before then the public will get a chance to decide whose fault it will be if they do stop.

Evidence for the court of public opinion was prepared this week in Washington by a three-man fact-finding board appointed last week by President Roosevelt. The issue: A 15 per cent pay cut proposed by the railroads and opposed by the railroad labor unions.

'Peace, Please!'

Boasting 3,623,087 paid-up members—726,154 more than a year ago—AFL held its 58th annual convention this week in Houston, Tex. To it, President Roosevelt addressed an appeal for peace between labor's fiery factions.

The convention's keynote, previously sounded, had been an attack by AFL Chief William Green on CIO Chief John L. Lewis and the NLRB. And Green's comment on Mr. Roosevelt's message was: "Overtures for a peace conference should and ought to come from the CIO. There is no immediate prospect for peace . . ."

People

War of Words.

After 43 years in the army, Major Gen. George Van Horn Moseley, 64, retired last week-end from his command of the fourth corps area at Atlanta. He commemorated the occasion by issuing a statement in which he said the nation was suffering from a "lack of outstanding leadership" and an "undigestible mass of untried theories." War Secretary Woodring cracked back that Gen. Moseley was suffering from disappointment in "his ambition to become chief of staff," a post to which President Roosevelt appointed Gen. Malin Craig in 1935.

Another Day.

Last Sunday was Grandmother's Day—so designated by the National Grandmothers club at is first annual convention in Chicago last week-end. "The idea of honoring grandmother with her special day is not just to do homage to the dear sweet soul sitting in a chimney corner." Chicago Grandmother Mrs. John Wesley Gray told 150 charter members, "but to make the world recognize grandmothers as a social force out to dispel the idea that grandmotherhood puts a woman on the shelf."

De-Institutionalization.

"Institutional" aspects of juvenile institutions were decried this week by E. H. Roselle, chairman of a committee concerned with planning such institutions. He was reporting to penologists during the American Prison Congress in St. Paul. And he suggested that homelike cottages, each of which should accommodate not more than 25 children, should be provided for juvenile offenders, so their environment would be more nearly like that of a normal community.
